Re: Black Love Resists in the Rust, et al. v. City of Buffalo, et al., No. 18-CV-719 (W.D.N.Y.)

Dear Judge Reiss:

Plaintiffs respectfully submit this reply letter on the redaction issue addressed in Plaintiffs' letter to the Court of May 7, 2021 and Defendants' response of June 4.

Defendants' Relevance Arguments Are
As Wrong as They Are Misplaced

Under the guise of “proportionality” analysis (Response at 1, 2nd ¶), Defendants assert lack of relevance of the Compstat and GIVE documents as a whole. But Defendants have already agreed to produce the documents (albeit they have reneged on a promise to produce them in redacted form while the parties await the Court's decision), and the effort required to do the redactions—perhaps a day of work by a legal assistant—does not even make it into the ballpark for proportionality analysis in a case such as this.

In any event, this case is about far more than merely the specific “incident[s] identified in the Amended Complaint” (Response at 1), or whether any of the social media or arrest information involved any of the Named Plaintiffs (id. at 2). This putative class action¹ involves Fourth Amendment violations in the operation of the Checkpoint program as a whole and, more broadly, systematic racial discrimination in the way the BPD handled—and handles—traffic policing. That Defendants have chosen to ignore Paragraphs 60-118 of the Amended Complaint will not make those allegations go away, and Plaintiffs are entitled to the discovery necessary to prove them.

As set forth in Plaintiffs' May 10 Status Report (ECF #91 at 7-8), a core issue in this case is whether BPD's “traffic safety” explanation for siting Checkpoints is a subterfuge. In direct support of the allegations in ¶¶ 60-79 of the Complaint, Exhibit 6 to the Status Report (ECF #91-6) confirms the BPD's statements in grant applications (see, e.g., ECF #66-23) that Checkpoint locations were driven, at least in part, by crime maps and crime data of the type in the Compstat and GIVE reports. The crime data in those reports are also needed as input to statistical analyses of the type undertaken in Floyd v. City of New York, 959 F. Supp. 2d 540, 580-82 (S.D.N.Y. 2013), to show that race remains a significant driver both of Checkpoint location and overall ticketing even controlling for crime. Accordingly, Defendants' efforts to use “proportionality” to back-door relevance arguments as to documents they have already agreed to produce is as wrong as it is misplaced.

¹ Defendants' discovery shenanigans have slowed the process of Plaintiffs' gathering the information needed to move for class certification, but that process is underway.

Defendants Have Not Responded at All With Respect to the Social Media Photographs in the Compstat Reports

Nothing in Defendants' Response so much as mentions the social media photographs in the Compstat reports. These are not "mugshots"; rather, ECAC trolls through the Facebook and other social media accounts of Buffalo residents, downloads photos and other information it thinks might be of interest to the BPD, and presents the photos in the Compstat reports.

Those photos are overwhelmingly of Black people. At least 95%—82 of 86—of the photos in the social media sections of the reports supplied to the Court in camera are of Black people; two are of Burmese, and at most two are of White people. Whether or not, as Plaintiffs believe, these photos by themselves create a jury issue that the BPD polices Black people differently than it does Whites, the photos are plainly relevant to that core issue. Defendants have said nothing about the social media photographs because there is nothing they can say.

The social media photographs should not be redacted.

Other Redactions Should Be Limited to PII of Arrestees and Crime Victims

The remaining items at issue are GIVE Report gun arrest photos, personally identifying information for arrestees and crime victims, and details of arrests, including locations.

As set forth in our original letter, the GIVE report gun-arrest photo arrays are relevant for the same reason as the Compstat social media photos are, but Plaintiffs do not need any personally identifying information of arrestees beyond those photos, and that PII can be redacted. This is not a search for witnesses but an effort to establish patterns and practices in BPD policing.

For the same reason, Plaintiffs do not need PII of crime victims, and that information may be redacted.

Plaintiffs do, however, need the locations and other details of arrests. Documents indicate that, at least in part, Checkpoint locations and patrol areas tracked crimes and arrests. Captain Philip Serafini's May 2016 Housing Statistical Report, for example, which went to the Commissioner, DPC Lockwood, and two Chiefs, reported for May 29 as follows (Exhibit 1, at COB016249):

5-29-16- This tour we focused on the Marine Drive Housing property due to the previous tours violence and gun arrest at Canal Side. Officers spent the early part of their tour breaking up a few fights. We also conducted a traffic checkpoint in the Marine Drive area. During the second half of the tour we moved our patrols to the other BMHA properties. Total of 38 traffic summonses were written, 3 arrests were made and 57 parking tags were written.

Two months later Captain Serafini told the Strike Force Lieutenants that:

DPC Lockwood also wants 2 traffic checkpoints run during the Daytime Detail, one of them at approximately 12:00 noon. As you all have done in the past, the checkpoint locations should be conducted in and around recent areas of violence. For example, if there was a shooting during the previous night at Broadway/ Filmore, then a traffic checkpoint should be conducted in that vicinity.

Plaintiffs need the locations and details of arrests to explore the prevalence and scope of these practices, which are directly relevant to the allegations of (at least) ¶¶ 60-79, as set forth above.

Defendants overstate the impact of the sealing provisions of (N.Y. Crim. Proc. Law §§ 160.50(1)(c), (3)(i), 160.55. In the first place, of course, the provisions apply only where arrests are involved—as they are in the GIVE reports but not in the Compstat reports. Moreover, Defendants’ assertion that, if the records were sealed, “the Defendants would be legally prohibited from producing these records” (ECF #97 at 3) is simply wrong. This is federal court, and Plaintiffs’ claims here are brought under federal law. The full quote from *Haus v. City of New York*² is:

As we have previously observed in this case, the state sealing statute does not govern here, since the plaintiffs are asserting federal claims. See Haus v. City of New York, 2006 WL 1148680, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 24, 2006) (citing inter alia United States v. Goldberger & Dubin, P.C., 935 F.2d 501, 505 (2d Cir.1991)); see also Fed. R. Evid. 501; Von Bulow v. Von Bulow, 811 F.2d 136, 141 (2d Cir.1987), vacated on other grounds, 828 F.2d 94 (2d Cir.1987); Fountain v. City of New York, 2004 WL 941242, at *5-6 (S.D.N.Y. May 3, 2004); Morrissey v. City of New York, 171 F.R.D. 85, 92 (S.D.N.Y.1997). Nonetheless, federal courts should, in the spirit of comity, take into consideration the policy interests embodied in state privileges and related state laws limiting disclosure of confidential materials, at least to the extent that they can be reconciled with federal policy interests and the discovery needs of federal civil rights litigants. See, e.g., Cruz v. Kennedy, 1997 WL 839483, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 19, 1997) (citing King v. Conde, 121 F.R.D. 180, 187 (E.D.N.Y.1988)).

2006 WL 3375395 (S.D.N.Y Nov. 17, 2006) (emphasis added).

In Haus, Judge Dolinger struck the balance by requiring production of the records themselves (not at issue here), with only the information specifically identifying the arrestees redacted. That permitted plaintiffs there to satisfy their “stated need for the documents, which is to assist in pursuing their class allegations about baseless arrests and their Monell theories,” id. The same approach would resolve the redaction issues here: Plaintiffs’ need is for the photographs and for the locations and details of the reported arrests; other PII may be redacted.

With PII Redacted, There Is No Need for “Attorneys’ Eyes Only” Treatment

Plaintiffs do not dispute that “attorneys’ eyes only” designation can play a role in resolving close issues of confidentiality, but we respectfully submit that the issues here are not close. Certainly not as to the social media pages—that is content that is in the public domain, and Defendants are not claiming law enforcement privilege—either for ECAC’s gathering and organizing of the material or, for that matter, anything else in the documents (Response at 4). And with PII of arrestees and victims redacted, there is no reason to bar the Named Plaintiffs in this action from having the information necessary to assist in the prosecution of their claims.

The cases cited by Defendants do not support a different result. In both Floyd and Fowler, the redacted documents ordered to be produced for “attorney’s eyes-only” also contained unredacted information that the court had determined was itself sensitive and needed to be kept confidential. See Floyd v. City of New York, 739 F. Supp. 2d 376, 383-86 (SDNY 2010) (files of ongoing internal affairs investigations were covered by the law enforcement privilege even with redactions of PII because “public disclosure of either the existence of an ongoing investigation or the specific investigative steps taken or planned could possibly taint the inquiry or chill the accessibility and candor of complainants and witnesses”); Fowler-Washington v. City of New York, 2020 WL 5893817, at *4 n.4 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 5, 2020) (Ordering that “social security numbers, dates of birth, home addresses, and the names of family members” be redacted from police officer personnel records while other PII in these same records, including personal telephone numbers, emails and medical information, “is restricted to attorney’s eyes only.”). In contrast, the documents at issue here, with the redactions to which Plaintiffs have agreed, do not contain any such unredacted sensitive information. Thus, an attorney’s-eyes only protective order is not warranted.³

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth herein in and in Plaintiffs’ May 7 letter, Plaintiff respectfully submit that the Compstat and GIVE documents should be redacted only as to PII (but not photographs) of arrestees and PII of crime victims.

Respectfully submitted,

s/ Edward P. Krugman

Senior Attorney

³ Plaintiffs also note that the “Attorneys’ eyes-only” confidentiality order covering the BPD Internal Affairs files previously produced in this litigation, ECF #54, was entered specifically to “effectuate the intent” of a New York State law that had generally protected police officer personnel records from public disclosure. See ECF #51 at 18-19; N.Y. Civil Rights Law § 50-a. However, because this law was fully repealed by the New York State Legislature in June 2020, see 2020 Sess. Law News of N.Y. Ch. 96 (S. 8496) § 1 (June 12, 2020), Plaintiffs intend to move to modify the confidentiality order to permit the Plaintiffs, and merely their attorneys, to view the internal affairs records. Defendants have indicated they are amenable to this change.

Subject Strike Froce Daytime Detail

Lieutenants,

Effective immediately, the manpower has increased for the Strike Force Daytime Detail. It will now comprise of 6 P.O.'s and 2 Lieutenants from 1130-1530hrs, daily. If we can only fill it with 1 Lieutenant, then another P.O. can be called in. Below are a few things to keep in mind:

DPC Lockwood wants results with this increased Daytime Detail. All officers should be made aware of this, and of what is expected of them. In the past the officers assigned to the Daytime Detail have always yielded good results and we all expect this to continue into the future.

DPC Lockwood also wants 2 traffic checkpoints run during the Daytime Detail, one of them at approximately 12;00 noon. As you all have done in the past, the checkpoint locations should be conducted in and around recent areas of violence. For example, if there was a shooting during the previous night at Broadway/ Filmore, then a traffic checkpoint should be conducted in that vicinity.

A separate Strike Force Daytime Detail report shall be filed every day by the Lieutenant who works the Detail. This report will include the stats from the Strike Force Daytime Detail car crews only. It should also include the names of person(s) arrested and their charges. You will still compile all of the stats for the entire day (daytime detail and regular shift) on the nightly report.

If there are any questions or comments please let me know. Thank you all for your good work and cooperation.

Captain Serafini
